Increasing Confusion Among the Reading Employees.

Probability That a General Strike Will Be Ordered.

A Convention of All the Employees of the Road Will Be Held To-Night at Reading - Their Deliberations Will Decide the Matter One Way or Another-Chairman Lee Says the Men Will Go Out -- President Austin Cerbin Will Allow No Dictation to the Company - Non-Union Mon Working To-Day at Elizabethport.

ISPECIAL TO THE WORLD. |
READING, Ps., Dec. 29. —The Convention of Knights of Labor in this city to-night will be an interesting event in connection with the strike troubles of the Philadelphia and Reading road. The meeting will be held in Excelsior Hall and will be attended by the leading men of the order in this Assembly dis-

The offers of the Joint Committee of the Miners' Amalgamated Association and the Miners' Knights of Labor assemblies to bring about peace between the company and the railroad hands, is the topic of all talk. Mr. Corbin's second telegram in answer to the last sent down by the Joint Committee the last sent down by the Joint Committee will be read at to-night's convention, to-gether with all other correspondence.

The meeting will have as many friends in it as possible of such radical leaders as Lee, Sharkey and Cahill.

The Executive Committee, which changed their headquarters from Philadelphia to Pottsville, have been very busy the past few days in selecting radical men suited to their ideas to be delegates to this convention.

The leaders who favor the strike are leaving nothing undone to have 45,000 miners of the company join issues with the discharged and striking railroad hands and coal-handlers at Port Richmond and declare a general strike along the lines and throughout the coal regions. By many it is believed that the convention to-night will pass a resolution to strike.

vention to-night will pass a resolution to strike.

Telegrams this morning from Ashland. Mahanoy Plane, Gordon and other local points state that trains are running as usual and all the men are at work. The collieries of the company and of individuals started up at Ashland. The miners about Mahanoy also started in this morning. All is quiet over the regions and the side-tracked coal is all removed.

Mining was generally resumed to-day, but the men are not at all satisfied, because their wages for next year have not yet been adjusted. They want some advance—if not the 8 per cent., a part of it. Trains and collieries will finish this day's work, at all events and there will be nothing more new till night.

Philadelphia, Dec. 29.—The Reading situation is no less complex to-day than yesterday. Everything hinges on the outcome of the negotiations between President Austin Corbin and Chairman Lee and the result of the convention of employees which will be held at Reading to-night.

Chairman Lee came down from Pottsville this morning, and in company with another members of the committee. Henry Bennett this morning, and in company with another member of the committee, Henry Bennett, called on General Supt. Sweigard in order to talk over the situation, and, if possible, to talk over the situation, and, if possible, to arrange a truce.

Mr. Sweigard was willing to meet Lee but refused to receive him and Bennett together, whereupon Lee, who wished to have a witness to the interview, declined to hold any conversation with the Superintendent,

Mr. Sweigard's position is that he cannot and will not recognize a committee of the Knights of Labor.

And will not recognize a committee of the Knights of Labor.

"After the visit," Mr. Lee said, "Mr. Sweigard sent for me to call on him and I came, bringing Mr. Bennett with me.

"He refused to receive us both, though he was willing to talk to me. That was not satisfactory, and I am now going back to Reading, where a convention will he held to-night of representatives for all the assemblies of Reading Railroad and Coal and Iron Company employees, and I believe the result of that convention will be a general strike, in which the miners will join."

The impression was that this was the last opportunity the company will have to settle with the men, and it failed to availiteelf of it. Supt. Sweigard said this morning that there are more applicants for places than cauld be given work. Everything is working smoothly.

ELIEABETH, N. J., Dec. 29.—The Reading Company assumed the offensive to-day at Elizabethport and started up their docks Elizabethport and started up their docks with non-union men.

Early this morning Sheriff Glassby, of Union County, was appealed to by the Reading Company for protectson of their property, they giving Sheriff Glassby notice that they were about to resume operations. The Sheriff had a conference with Shipper Wallace, and assured him that he would see that we violence was done.

lace, and assured him that he would see that no violence was done.

At 8 o'clock the steamers D. R. Martin and Thomas Hunt arrived at the docks from New York with 175 men of various nationalities. They were quietly taken off the boats, marched upon the dock and put to work. Many of the men are experienced coal-handlers.

All the approaches to the dock-area.

All the approaches to the docks are guarded by special policemen and Pinkerton's men armed with revolvers and clubs. No one is allowed to visit the docks unless he is an official of the company or has a boat awaiting official of the company or has a boat awaiting a load.

A WOBLD reporter visited the docks at noon. He was stopped two or three times by the specials, but finally allowed to proceed. The shipping office was found in charge of Deputy Sheriff Dixon, who has his head-quarters there and has charge of all the special officers guarding the docks.

There are about thirty of them in all. Work progressed fainly this morning and the officials say they are satisfied with the outlook.

None of these discharged men, they say, will be taken back. There are sixty boats lying at the docks, and the captains of these so far have offered no objections to load. It is expected that about a dozen will object, but the remainder will not.

Deputy Sheriff Dixon does not anticipate any trouble, but say he is prepared for any emergency.

any trouble, but say he is prepared for any emergency.

There are 6,500 tons of coal on the docks, or about three days' work. No coal has arrived since Friday.

The discharged coal-handlers are standing about the corners and are greatly surprised at the turn affairs have taken. They feel rather despondent and don't know what the outcome will be.

At the office of Austin Corbin this morning the announcement was made that the Read-ing Company was having no trouble at all in working all its lines. The places of the few men who struck in Philadelphia yesterday were filled easily, and the strike had dwindled to proportions which made it unworthy the dignity of being called a strike.

This afternoon President Austin Corbin sent the following order to General Manager A. A. McLeod at Philadelphia:

To such of our old employees as have stood manfully and faithfully by us we feel obliged and thankful and shall not forget them. But the time has now arrived when all of our employees will be required to decide when all of our employees will be required to decide when all of our employees will be required to decide whether they expect to retain their places by reason of honest and faithful service and prompt obedience to the orders of the company that employs them and pays them, or by blind obedience to the direction of the Knights of Labor, through which organization the leaders hope to coerce us into the employment of men who consider their first obedience due to that order.

The men that stand by us will have employment with reasonable nours, and good pay, as much as is paid by any other corporation of a similar character. Men who do not will never be allowed on the road again under any circumstances.

We have never objected to labor organizations and do not now. Every man shall be free to belong to one or not, as he pleases. But the heads of such orders cannot and shall not dictate to this company as to whom it shall employ or how operate its property. Places that are left in obedience to the orders of the Knights of Labor shall be filled by new men, and such new men will be retained and under no circumstances be discharged to make room for men who have left their places.

Hereafter we shall operate this property with charged to make room for men who have left their places.

Hereafter we shall operate this property with employees who consider their first duty is to the company and expect to obey reasonable orders made in the transaction of its business.

There has never been a moment when, under any circumstances, we would arbitrate any question growing out of this strike. There has been nothing to arbitrate. It is only a question as to whether the company shall be permitted to operate its own property—a property in which there is invested over $200,000,000—or whether that property shall be controlled by the Knights of Labor.

It may as well be understood now, and from this time on, that any wheel that is turned on the Reading system will be turned under the orders of the management of the company, and under the orders of nobody else.

A despatch to Mr. Corbin from the Phila-

A despatch to Mr. Corbin from the Phila-delphia office says:

The men have come back so fast that no more new men are wanted at Port Richmond.

No business was transacted at the meeting of the coal barons this morning at the Fifth Avenue Hotel. After a session of a few minutes an adjournment was taken for a month.

Knights of Labor and trades unionists are discussion to a tribe asymptotic and trades unionists are discussions the strike asymptotic.

Knights of Labor and trades unionists are discussing the strike earnestly. A member of the Executive Board of District Assembly No. 49 said, when asked his opinion regarding the effect of a general strike on the order and whether or not the defeat of the men would be disastrous to the order.

"If the Reading men go out and appeal to the General Executive Board that body will take charge of the strike and, if necessary, call on every national and district assembly to aid them.

"There are 500,000 members in good standing in the order, and there is not one who will not contribute his or her mite to aid their brothers of the Reading Railroad.

"Failure would not break up the order any more than the Southwestern Railway strike did. I hear some wiseacres going about and saying the Knights are on the wane, that they have another black eye, and all such talk.

John Boyd is one of the best-known politicians in Hudson County. He is clerk of the Board of Freeholders, has been a member of the Board of Education, and ran for the Police Board without success. At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon Mrs. Boyd went to Mrs. Hamilton's house, at 168 Grand street, with her son and rang the bell. Mrs. Hamilton opened the door. According to the widow, the wife began by throwing red pepper in Mrs. Tolston's face and then went into the street and flung brick bats through the window.

pepper in Mrs. Hoston's ace and then went into the street and flung brick bats through the window.

An hour later warrants for Mrs. Boyd's arrest were procured from Justice Weed.

Mrs. John Boyd gave a different story of the scrimmage this morning. She said that Mrs. Hamilton opened the door, and when she saw her face ran upstairs. She followed Mrs. Hamilton half way upstairs and was met by Mrs. Folsom coming down.

Mrs. Hamilton said to-day that John Boyd is the trustee of $5,500 left her by her husband, and that his calls were on business.

Mrs. Tolston carried a large bottle of red pepper, and Mrs. Hamilton followed her with a club. The old lady threw the pepper. It blinded Mrs. Boyd, and was also blown into the eyes of the others.

Mrs. Boyd admitted smashing the windows. This morning she went before Justice Rouget and swore out a warrant for the arrest of Mrs. Tolson on a charge of throwing the pepper.

Mrs. Boyd told the reporter a long story of pepper.

Mrs. Boyd told the reporter a long story of her husband's life. She showed letters from Nellie Hamilton to her husband which she found in his pockets. One dated from Saratoga July 25, 1886, began "My own dear Jack," and ended with the postscript:

Jack," and ended with the postscript:
You must be good and be able to repest your vow if I wish it. You know how jealous I am of my Jack. Your loving NELLE.

Mrs. Boyd wrote to her husband asking about the vow. He answered that it was a promise to drink no more champagne. The wife has several receipts for a piano and such things, found in Boyd's pockets. She thinks that Nellie Hamilton received the goods.
On the night of Dec. 13 her youngest baby died. On that night Boyd was at a ball with Nellie Hamilton. An anonymous letter told her of this, and added that he had bought the thamonds the wears were.

her of this, and added that he had bought the diamonds the wesses wore.

Mrs. Boyd says that in last May she said to her husband, "You must choose between this woman and me. You cannot live with both of us." The next morning he chose and left her.

Mrs. Boyd is very short and stout and thirty-two years of age. Mrs. Hamilton is a pretty brunette of thirty.

Boyd declares that he left his wife for good reason, and that he knew the Hamilton woman only in a business way.

It is expected that the various arrests will be made this afternoon.

DID A LOG SINK HER?

A Startling Theory of the Loss of the Newcastle City.

Lost in the Neighborhood Where the Big Raft Was Abandoned.

Sighted Only a Short Time Before She Was Wrecked and Then Apparently All Blate -The Only Information a Brief Report Brought by a Schooner-No Passengers Carried-Her Crew Safe on Nantucket Lightship When Last Seen.

The news of the loss of the large from teamship Newcastle City off Nantucket ast Thursday, received by Sanderson & Son, her New York agents, this morning, suggests the idea to old tars that the vessel may have come in contact with some of Mr. Leary's floating logs. The big raft was set adrift by the Miranda in the same neighborhood where the New-castle City is supposed to have been lost.

Many shipping men say that if one of the loose logs struck the steamer she would, without doubt, be sent to the bottom. They be-

Many shipping men say that if one of the loose logs struck the steamer she would, without doubt, be sent to the bottom. They believe that great damage to commerce by the raft is yet to be recorded.

The raft theory, though only based on conjecture, has many ardent believers.

The Newcastle City sailed from Newcastle, England, on Nov. 29. She was in command of Capt. Thornton, an old and experienced skipper, and carried a crew all told of thirty-three men.

After she sailed puthing was heard of her for some time. Heavy head winds and high seas prevailed in the ocean, and as the steamer carsed no passengers her agents thought that the captain was plodding the deep in a quiet and easy way.

After being on the ocean for nearly three weeks the steamer was sighted by a pilot-best last Thursday. She was then in the vicinity of Nantucket, and was apparently all right.

From that time no word was received of the whereabouts of the Newcastle City until her loss was reported this morning.

The schooner Agnes J. Grace, which srrived at Baltimore yesterday from Boston, reported that on Dec. 24 she was boarded by the crew of the Nantucket South Sheal Lightship, who said that Capt. Thornton and his crew were on the lightship, their vessel having been lost.

The crew of the lightship said that the men were auxious to be taken off, as the surply of provisions was getting short.

This is the only information the agents here have received so far. Yesterday Sanderson & Sons telegraphed to the captain of the steamship Buffalo, which was to have sailed from Boston that day to search in the neighborhood where the seamer was sighted last Thursday. The agents thought that probably the Newcastle City was in distress.

The Buffalo is expected to arrive in port this evening. If the weather was clear when she passed the South Shoal Lightship it is probable that she was signalled and the Newcastle City's crew were taken off.

The Newcastle City was built in Hartle-pool, England, in 1883, and was owned by C. Furnass, of the same place. She re but the contractors are now certain of success.

At 4.30 p. m. yesterday the wind changed suddenly from southeast to northwest and averted the imminent danger which had threatened for the preceding twenty-four hours.

Contractor Weed's men worked all the evening and throughout the night in spite of the bitter cold and the keen wind, and by 11 o'clock this morning had driven in 150 eighteen-inch piles to protect the foundations of the hotel on the side next to the sea.

The plan is to erect a railroad of fifty tracks on a plane about twenty feet under the present foundations of the hotel, knock the existing supports from under the structure and then move the hotel on trucks by the aid of a number of powerful engines to the old meadow, about 600 feet to landward of the present site.

Judging from the progress already made the scheme looks entirely practicable. Mr. Miller says that it will be accomplished by the middle of next month.

The Brighton Beach Railroad Company, which owns the hotel, is carrying on the work. The cost is estimated at $100,000. The hotel is worth six times that amount.

HE KEPT A MAN FROM DYING.

Dramatist Yardley's Claim Upon Mmc. Do. lare's New Play. Argument was heard yesterday by Judge

Van Hoesen in the Court of Common Pleas on a motion to show cause why an injunction should not be issued restraining Mme. Seline Dolaro and Henry E. Abbey from producing the play, "In the Fashion," unless the name of William Yardley appeared as co-author. David Thornton appeared for Mr. Yardley, and in his argument read a letter from Mme. Dolaro dated May 9, 1887, in which she said: "When I get a bit of energy Napoleon is a feel to me."

"When I get a bit or energy mapoison is fool to me."

Ex-Judge Dittenhoefer, for the plaintiffs, denied the statements of the defendant and read an affidavit from Mme, Dolaro stating that Yardley never wrote a line of the play of dictated a dialogue, and all he did was to keep a man from dying in the fourth act. Mr. Abbey said that he was under no obligation to puff an author and would not do so in this case. Decision was reserved. Charges Against Firemen. Since the fire in St. Aloysius Academy, Youkers n Sunday morning, it has been said that
